ABSTRACT

The bibliography provides a comprehensive listing of the literature of Texas educational history up to March, 1978. Objectives are to provide access to the sources and to stimulate interest and research in the field. Over 1050 books, journal articles, pamphlets, theses, and doctoral dissertations are arranged in nine subject sections: General Aspects (bibliographies and general education works), Education in Early Texas, Minorities, Religious Education, Education in the Individual Counties, Public Schools, Academies and Institutes, Colleges and Universities, and Biographies. Under each subject specific entries are listed by author. Universities and colleges listed in the seventh section are given county location so they might be cross-referenced to Section V (Education in the Individual Counties). An appendix offers brief histories of Texas Colleges nad Universities including founding dates and name changes. The document concludes with an index of authors and co-authors. (Author/CK)

AUTHOR INDEX

P R E F A C E

This bibliography is an attempt to provide a comprehensive and systematic check list to the literature of Texas educational history. A considerable amount of the material on the history of Texas education has never been indexed or listed, hence unavailable to researchers and historians. It is my hope that this volume will not only provide ready access to the sources, but also serve to stimulate interest and research in the field.

The bibliography contains a broad range of books, articles, pamphlets, theses and doctoral dissertations covering subjects from education in Spanish Texas to the Gilmer-Aikin legislation. I have aimed to list all pertinent works written consciously as educational history. I have also included autobiographies of important Texas educators, selected source documents and state publications. The cut off date for inclusion of entries in this book is March 31, 1978.

The organization of the bibliography has been kept as simple as possible by reducing the major sections to nine: General Aspects, Education in Early Texas, Minorities, Religious Education, Education in the Individual Counties, Public Schools, Academies and Institutes, Colleges and Universities, and Biographies. Specific entries are arranged alphabetically by author under the major section headings or specific topical heading. As titles for the most part have been listed only once, readers searching for material on a given subject should look under related subject headings and general works category. An author index is supplied in the back of the book. All individuals cited as author or co-author are included in the index along with the entry number. The location of each university and college cited in Section VII have been given for cross reference purposes to Section V -- Education in the Individual Counties.

A unique feature of the bibliography is inclusion in the appendix of brief histories of Texas colleges and universities with dates of founding and name changes. Information for these sketches was abstracted from The Handbook of Texas, Texas Almanac, C. E. Evan's The Story of Texas Schools, and various university and college catelogs.

Although every effort has been made to include all relevant material, I doubtlessly omitted works of high value and included others which might have been omitted. I shall be grateful for any suggestions, whether of additions or deletions which will make revision of the bibliography useful to students and teachers of Texas educational history.

I would like to express my appreciation to the librarians who assisted in tracing down references for me. My special thanks to the staffs of the Barker Texas Collection and the Perry-Castaneda Library at the University of Texas. For assistance in proof reading and research I am indebted to the members of the East Texas State University Archives: Ms. Rosa de Luna, Ms. Robin Moore, Mr. Bill Moore, and Mr. Ron Riley. Special appreciation is expressed to Ms. Carol Waldrip for her able and patient assistance in typing and editing this bibliography.

APPENDIX

Texas Colleges and Universities: Past and Present

ABILENE CHIRISTIAN UNIVERSITY, Abilene, opened as an elementary and secondary school under the name Childers Classical Institute in September, 1906. The school attained junior college status in 1916, and senior college status on September 23, 1919. A year later the name of the college was changed to Abilene Christian College. In the fall of 1971, the Christian College of the Southwest and Fort Worth Christian College became branches of Abilene Christian College. In 1973, these two colleges merged into the Metrocenter of Abilene Christian College in Garland (now known as Abilene Christian University at Dallas). The final name change came in February 1976 when the Abilene Christian became Abilene Christian University.

ADD-RAN JARVIS COLLEGE, located at Thorp Springs, Hood County, opened in 1897 under the name Jarvis Institute. In 1900, the name of the institution was changed to Jarvis College, and in 1904 Add-Ran was added. The lack of patronage forced the school to close around 1909.

ALVIN COMMUNITY COLLEGE was approved by the voters of Alvin, Brazoria County, on November 2, 1948, and classes first began on September 12, 1949, with an initial enrollment of 89 students.

AMARILLO COLLEGE, a non-denominational private school located in Potter-Randall County, was opened in September, 1897 by W. D. Twichell and James D. Hamlin. The school continued until 1910.

AMARILLO COLLEGE (not to be confused with the earlier Amarillo College) was organized by the voters of the Amarillo Independent School District on July 30, 1929 and opened its doors in September of the same year with a faculty of seven members.

AMERICAN TECHNOLOGICAL UNIVERSITY, Kileen, was founded in 1973 as a non-denominational co-educational institution of higher education.

ANDREW FEMALE COLLEGE was opened in 1852 at Huntsville and received a charter on February 3, 1853 from the State of Texas. The school operated under the jurisdiction of the Methodist Church until it closed in 1879.

ANGELINA COLLEGE. On September 24, 1966, the voters of Lutkin created the Anglina County Junior College District. Anglina College registered its first students in the fall of 1968.

ANGELO STATE UNIVERSITY. San Angelo College (the predecessor of Angelo State University) opened in 1928 following an municipal election held in 1926 to create a junior college for the San Angelo Independent School District. On September 1, 1963 the name of the school was changed to Angelo State College when the 58th Legislature made the school part of the state system of senior colleges. In May 1969 the name was again changed from Angelo State College to Angelo State University.

ANNUNICATION COLLEGE, an independent junior college located at Victoria, was established in 1959 by the Sisters of the Congregation of the Incarnate Word and Blessed Sacrament. The school was forced to close in 1971.

ARLINGTON BAPTIST COLLEGE (formerly the Bible Baptist Seminary) was founded at Arlington in 1939. The name was changed to Arlington Baptist College in 1965.

AUSTIN COLLEGE, originally located at Huntsville, received a charter from the State of Texas on November 22, 1849 and opened in 1852 under the sponsorship of the Brazos Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church. In 1876, the college was moved to Sherman. In 1930, the Texas Presbyterian College at Milford -- a women's college -- merged with Austin College in Sherman.

AUSTIN COMMUNITY COLLEGE. A community college district was created for Austin by the voters of the Austin School District in late 1972. The first students were accepted for enrollment in the fall semester of 1973.

AUSTIN PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY was a direct outgrowth of the Austin School of Theology which operated from 1884 to 1895. Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary was organized by the Presbyterian Synod of Texas in 1899. The seminary began offering regular scheduled classes on October 1, 1902.

BAPTIST MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY (originally known as the North American Theological Seminary) was established in 1955 at Jacksonville.

BAYLOR UNIVERSITY. Chartered on February 1, 1845, Baylor University offically opened its doors in 1846 at Independence. In 1886, Baylor University and Waco University were merged and rechartered to form Baylor University at Waco.

BAYLOR COLLEGE OF DENTISTRY. The State Dental College, a private dental school licensed by the State of Texas in 1905, opened in Dallas in 1906. In 1918, Baylor University Medical College purchased the school, changing the name to Baylor University College of Dentistry. In 1971, the school became an independent corporation chartered by the State. At this time, the name of the institution was changed to Baylor College of Dentistry.

BAYLOR COLLEGE OF MEDICINE, located in Houston, is a successor to the Medical Department of the University which was organized and opened in Dallas in 1900 as a private medical school. In 1903, the Board of Trustees of Baylor University took over control of the medical school. In 1943, the Board of Trustees of Baylor University decided to move the school to Houston. In 1969, Baylor College of Medicine separated completely from Baylor University.

BAY VIEW COLLEGE, a private school for women located at Portland, San Patricio County, was established by Thomas Clark in 1894. The school closed in 1917.

BEE COUNTY COLLEGE. The voters of Bee County authorized the creation of the Bee County Junior College District in an election held on November 2, 1965. Instruction began in September, 1967, with 790 students and 35 faculty members.

BELLE PLAIN COLLEGE. The Methodist of West Texas established Belle Plain College at Belle Plain, Callahan County in 1881. The school closed its doors in 1888 when the Texas and Pacific Railroad by-passed the city.

BISHOP COLLEGE, originally located in Marshall, was established on September 26, 1881 by the missionaires from the Home Mission Society of the Northern Baptist Convention. Chartered in 1886, the college moved to Dallas in 1961.

BLINN COLLEGE, initially known as Mission Institute, was organized under the sponsorship of the Southern German Conference of the Methodist Church of Brenham in 1883. In 1889, the name of the school was changed to Blinn Memorial College. In 1927 Blinn was accredited a junior college, in 1930 Blinn merged with Southwestern College and in 1937 Blinn became the first county owned junior college in Texas. That same year, Blinn severed all association with Southwestern and changed its name to Blinn College.

BOSQUEVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY AND MALE COLLEGE was established by S. G. O'Bryan and the Baptist Church five miles north of Waco. The institution began operations in 1857, secured a charter in 1858, and closed in 1865.

BRAZOSPORT COLLEGE. On November 27, 1948, the voters of Brazosport Independent School District created the Brazosport Junior College District. However, this District was not activated until 1968 when the voters authorized a tax to support a junior college. The college opened classes on September 16, 1968. In 1970, the name of the school was changed from Brazosport Junior College to Brazosport College.

BRITE DIVINITY SCHOOL was an outgrowth of the bible college started by A. B. Sweeney in 1895 at Texas Christian University. Lack of financial support caused the school to close in 1899. A bible department continued to function at TCU until Lucas Charles Brite II donated funds to establish the Brite College of the Bible in 1914. The name of the school was changed to Brite Divinity School in 1954.

BRYAN BAPTIST ACADEMY. This co-educational college and academy was established at Bryan in 1905 by the First Baptist Chruch of Bryan. The growth of colleges and high schools in the surrounding communities forced the closing of the school in 1917.

BUFFALO GAP COLLEGE was founded by the Presbyterian Church of Buffalo Gap. The college department of the school enrolled its first students in 1886. In 1902, the lack of patronage forced the termination of the school.

BURLESON COLLEGE, located in Greenville, Hunt County, was established in September, 1895 by the Hunt County Baptist Association. In 1899, after the Hunt County Association conveyed the college to the Baptist General Convention, the school was reorganized as a junior college. The onset of the Depression forced the closing of the school in December, 1930.

BURNETTA COLLEGE, located at Venus in Johnson County, was established by the Disciples of Christ in 1896. The institution closed in 1899 when the public school system purchased the property of the college.

BUTLER COLLEGE. Operated by the East Texas Baptist Association, Butler College was established in Tyler in 1905 under the name Texas Baptist Academy for the purpose of educating blacks. In 1924, the school was changed to a junior college and renamed Butler College. The school ceased to exist prior to the fall term of 1972.

CALHOUN COLLEGE, a private school located at Kingston, owes its founding to J.L. Clemons and J. C. Todd who opened the school about 1880. The institution was chartered by the State of Texas in 1887. About 1900 the school ceased to exist.

CARLTON COLLEGE, located at Kentuckytown near Bonham, began operations under the leadership of Rev. Charles Carlton in 1865 or 1866. In 1867, Carlton decided to move the school to Bonham. In 1913, Carlton College merged with Carr-Burdette College in Sherman under the new name Carr-Carlton, but this consolidation was abandoned in 1916 and Carlton closed soon after the separation.

CARR-BURDETTE was a privately operated female academy established by Mrs. O. A. Carr in 1894. After an unsuccessful merger with Carlton College, Carr-Burdette closed in 1929.

CEDAR VALLEY COLLEGE, one of the seven junior colleges of the Dallas Community College District, first opened in the fall of 1977.

CENTRAL COLLEGE was founded by the Methodist Church and the citizens of Sulphur Springs. In 1894, the North Texas Annual Conference of the Methodist Church sold the property to H. N. Eastman who eventually opened Eastman College.

CENTRAL NAZARENE COLLEGE , located at Hamlin, received a charter from the State of Texas in 1909 and began classes in 1911. In 1928, the college merged with Bethany Paniel College at Bethany, Oklahoma.

CENTRAL PLAINS ACADEMY, the first institution of higher education to be located on the Staked Plains, was opened in 1890 at Estacado in Crosby County. Adverse weather conditions and a plague of grasshoppers forced the school to close in 1893.

CHAPPELL HILL MALE AND FEMALE INSTITUTE, located at Chappell Hill (later spelled Chapel Hill) was established in 1850 and chartered on February 9, 1852. The male department of Chappell Hill was annexed by Soule University in 1856. Consequently, the name of the school was changed to Chappell Hill Female Institute. The school closed during the 1910-1911 academic year.

CHEROKEE JUNIOR COLLEGE. Originally known as Cherokee Academy, the institution opened in 1883 at Cherokee, San Saba County. Two years later in 1896, the school merged with the West Texas Normal and Business College. In 1911, after several years of unstable existence, the property of the college was acquired by the Methodist Church which changed the name to Cherokee Junior College. The 1920-1921 session was the school's last year of operation.

CHIRISTIAN COLLEGE OF THE SOUTHWEST was chartered by the State of Texas on March 19, 1962 under the name Garland Christian College. In February 1963, the name was changed from Garland Christian College to Christian College of the Southwest. In 1964, the school moved to Mesquite. In 1973, the Christian College of the Southwest and Fort Worth Christian College merged with Abilene Christian College(later Abilene Christian University).

CISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE. In 1939, the forty-sixth Texas Legislature passed an act creating a public junior college in Cisco. The Cisco Junior College first opened for classes on September 10, 1940 to an opening day enrollment of 40.

CLARENDON JUNIOR COLLEGE (originally know as Clarendon College and University Training School) was founded in 1898 by the Northwest Texas Conference of the Methodist Church. In 1925 the school was raised to a senior level college.
